LABOR .- We understand that our farmers experience some difficulty in procuring labor. A number of per sons from the South have been her and by offers of higher wages have induced many negroes to leave the State

The want of labor is a serious mat ter, and unless some steps are taken to supply it many farms will go uncultivated. At this late season it be comes a grave matter how this can be done. It is too late to talk now of importing white labor from Europe or elsewhere. We are unable to suggest any remody unless the lazy drones who would assassinate Mr. Lincole, who hang around the streets can be ed to go to work. The high price of cotton and provisions ought to be tempting enough to convert many of the white nonproducers into efficient farmers or field hands. There is certainly no business now that offers such sure remuneration as that of agriculture, and it many of the young men who are now out of employment fould take the plow they could independently live.

GENERAL GRANT .- One of the edi tors of the Religious Herald who me with Gen. Grant during his recent visit to Baltimore as one of the trustees of the Peabody fund thus speaks of him:

"At our time of lite we ought to now something of men, and we cannot be mistaken in saying that he is insesuming, modest, and really kindhearted. As to his soldierly qualities we are no judges; but in this country, and in this epoch, when and where every man and woman is an orator; when and where, at every gatheringtrom large conventions to little church meetings-we have Cicerces and Demostheneses, raving, reciting, maddening all the true inspirations of noble eloquence-it is surely a marvel and a mystery to discover a human being who not only "does not rise to make a speech"-as the tedious speech-makers always say-but who will not make a speech. He has at least the wise prudence of one President, of whom the elder Adams remarked, "The great difference between General Washington and myself is that he knows how to hold his tongue and I do not." However, one conclusion we formed. after some little intercourse with these visitors. It is, that General Grant considers the war as ended, and means officially and really so to treat the matter; that he wishes to hear no more about "rebellion," and "treason," and 'loyalty," as terms of crimination and recrimination; but sincerely desires to promote the best welfare of the whole Union, acting justly, generously, magnanimously and that he will firmly carry out his sincere convictions, and is not a man of whom it will ever be said (as Wendell Phillips said of Mr. Lincoln) that he was "bayon tted up" to measures gainst which his judgment and his heart recalcitrated."

We suspect the author of the above to be Dr. Fuller who is one of the associate editors of the Herald. No man has a better right than this eloquent divine to speak of the value of silence and of reticence. Himself a man of genius, a scholar and an orator of the first order, there is something peculiarly graceful in the compliment to the ilance" of Grant from su

"There never was a history of this city when extravegance was carried to such a dizzy height as now. Exorbitant prices are asked and cheerfully the time with intense interest. It from the court costume of the Empress and Richmond. May the personal which all the fashionable chit-chat of country, and may the present in the court is the country and may the present in the country and may the personal country. the day is retailed, marriages are an- change of friendly sentiments between nounced by authority, and elopements duly chronicled, the proportion of both announcements being about equal. Then we have "court quaddrilles" at the houses of our republican aristocracy, and in "point of fact," as Cousin Feenex would say, having reached the minimum in morals and the maximum in wealth, we are ripe for the introduction of every folly and every absurdity. To cap the climax, our fashionable brides have determined to "inaugurate" the system of pages-"Utopian quite." Here is a good chance for our "woman's rights' women to see to it that boys do not monopolize this new and doubtless lucrative branch of industry."

THE LINCOLN ASSASSINATION-A SINGULAR STATEMENT .-- A correspond ent of the New York Commercial telegraphs to that paper from Washington, the following:

The Congressional Committee has obtained some important evidence in relation to the assassination of President Lincoln. A servant of the Russian Minister, in July, 1862, has testified during the examination of W. W. Corcoran's claim by the Senate Committee, that at a dioner party given at the Russian Legation, Senator Bayard said he would give $10,000 to any one and Mr. Coreoran added that he would give ten times that sum. The Committee summened old man Dohner who was then butler to the Russian Minister, to corroborate the testimony of the witness. But Dohner has thus far refused to testify, claiming diplomatie privileges, on the ground that he was then employed at the French Legation. He has been excused until Wednesday next, when he will have to testify or be brought before the Senate

No one who knows Senator Bayard or Mr. Coreoran attach any credit to this reported evidence Mr. Dohner, who is referred to by the correspondent, was steward to Mr. Bodisco while the latter represented the Russian Government at this Capital. The Minister resided in Georgetown, and Mr. Dohner built himself a house in that city where he still resides Senator Bayard, of Delaware, voluntarily appeared before the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia Tuesday, and emphatically pronounced as a falsehood the story going the rounds that at a private dinner in 1861 he declared that he would give $10,000 if Lincoln was assassinated. The story applied also to W. W. Cororan, the exbanker, who also denounces it as false. The committee are considering a claim of Mr. Corcoran passed by the House, and this story was gotten up probably to prejudice it.

RADICAL ASSAULT UPON GENERAL. GRANT .- Testimony accumulates to the effect that General Grant's late little speech gives great umbrage to the Radical leaders. We quote from the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune as follows .

General Grant's little speeca of Sat arday morning is the subject of much alk here. He spoke with great de liberation, and had evidently well weighed his wor's. The best class of public men are entirely satisfied with the General's reticence about his Cabinet, but a number of puffed up and consequential Congressmen rail against him with a good deal of bitterness, and talk about their rights as the immediate representatives of the people and the necessity of showing him that he cannot run the Government alone very long. Those most in the General's confidence say that his remarks about individuals in connection with appointments which must be made at an early day do not indicate any less discernment in choosing the right men for civil officers than he showed in se lecting good agents for doing his work when at the head of the army during

COLUBLE MANURES. Sulphuric Acid and Superphosphate Company,

CHARLESTON, S. C. Having completed their extensive manufactory, are now prepared to furnish SOLDBLE FERTILIZERS, no other kinds being available to Planters for immediate returns for their invest ments. This Company, under the direction entirely of Southern men of high charocter, offers inducements which will recommend it to Southern Planters. Their works are among the largest and most complete in the United States, and enable them to prepare at home an abundant supply of the proper solvent for the South Carolina native bone phosphates, which are near by. From these phosphates they propose to manufacture a FERTILIZER even richer in Soluble Phosphates than those made from Raw Bones, and containing more than twice the quantity of Superphosphate of Lime found in the best average manures offered for sale, the rates at which we offer them being no higher than the average price of other fertilizers, while the manures contain twice as much fertilizing material; they are in fact much cheaper to the consumer. They are offered on the market in two forms, with a guarantee that the material in each will correspond to the advertises.
